THE LETTER CASE.

The Commissioner Discharges Mrs. Burchill From Custody.

The examination of witnesses in the case against Mrs. Burehill for unlawfully detaining a letter sent to the address of a citizen of this city, was continued yesterday before Commissioner Kennedy. Messrs. Shuck, Grund-hofer, Burchill, and Mrs. Burchill and a young lady clerk in the post-office were examined. The testimony all went to show that Mrs. Burchill was and teachers, there were present were examined. The testimony all went to show that Mrs. Burchill was but carrying out instructions in taking possession of the letter, and that she was guilty of no violation of any of the laws bearing on the case.

United States Attorney Bigger for the government made a great effort to have the lady effort to have the lady bound over, but Capt, Ball successfully combatted all the points of argument and testimony he brought to bear, and after summing up the evidence the commissioner released Mrs. Burchill from all blame in the affair. There was a great deal of interest manifested in the trial, and some sharp passages between counsel occurred. Capt. Ball was particularly sarcastic upon the young men who were instrumental in her arrest, and once when Shuck was testifying became so caustic that the witness called upon the court to protect him. The decision in the case was very gratifying to Mrs. Burchill's friends, who have all along been assured of the ladies' innocence of any wrong intent. The hearing of the case of the alleged destruction of mail matter will come up to-day in the same court.

Has Put Up.

[New York Letter.] The narrowest house in this city may be seen at the northwest corner of Lexington avenue and Eighty second When Lexington avenue was cut through some years ago, a strip of land five feet wide and one hundred feet deep was all that was left of a lot belonging to a person who did not own the next lot on the street. The strip, while of little value by itself, would be valuable to the person owning the adjoining lot on Eighty-see ond street, because it would not only enable him to build a house five feet wider, but would give him windows all along the side of his house on Lexington avenue. The two owners, Lexington avenue. The two owners, however, could not agree as to terms and a house was creeted on the lot adjoining the nrarow strip. The owner of the latter had nothing to do but to abandon his lot or build a house five feet wide upon it. The latter course was perhaps adopted because such a house would shut up all the side windows of the neighboring build-ing and considerably reduce its value. The new building, which has been finished for

The new building, which has been finished for some months, is therefore five feet wide, one hundred feet deep and four stories high. It is divided into two houses, each fifty feet long, and the entrance doors are, of course, on the avenue, as there is no room for a door at either end of the building. The law allows a building at the corner of a street to have projecting bay ner of a street to have projecting bay windows along the side, and, taking advantage of this circumstance, the architect has managed to plan a house which, while peculiar in appearance and probably uncomfortable to live in, may find tenants. Without these baywindows, or square projections run-ning from the foundations to the roof, it would not have been possible to build a house at all, for no room would have been wider than three feet. Each house has, therefore, two bay windows, in one of which are the stairs and in the other one room about eight wide by fifteen feet long, upon each floor. The long passage between the stair-well and the room is about three feet wide. Each house contains a kitchen eight by fifteen feet and four rooms each of the same size, but on different floors. There are also in-geniously-placed closets at each end of the building and under the stairs. Both houses are unoccupied. One is offered for rent at $500 a year. If the object of the builder of these extraordinary houses was simply to shut out the light from his neighbor's building, he would probably have ac coplished the same end at much less expense by adopting Mr. George Kemp's advice of sheet iron shields. Mr. Kemp did not wish the occupants of the building in the rear of his house, at No. 720 Fifth avenue, to overlook his premises, and so he built an iron scaffolding in the back yard and placed iron shields against the obnoxious openings, shutting out air and light as completly as a brick wall would have done. The arrangement has been for years the source of no little comment from the neighbors and passers-by.

ELLUINUS DIAMONDS.

Adornments of an Astress Who Distributed the Prize of Bucolic Virtue. [London World.] Entress libre is certainly a great attraction at Paris; witness the cafes-con-certs. How much greater is the attraction when free access is offered to the Parisians at least once a year; for since Cora Pearl set the fashion every demi-mondaine who respects herself is bound to have her sale. Last year Mile. Caroline Letessier realized 300,000 frances by the sale of the contents of her hotel in the Bouleyard Malesherbes, and all Paris went to see whether her meretricious hixury was really tasteful or not. This year the great sale is that of the sur-plus furniture, jewels and objects of art of Mile. Gabrielle Elluini, which will last the whole of this week at the Hotel Drouot. Mile, Elluini is a curious creature—a phenomenon, per-haps, peculiar to contemporary France. Years ago, in comparative remote antiquity, Mile. Elluini was an actress at the little theatre of the Folics Marigny, now demolished, where Offenbach's first pieces were played. At that time she had a carriage; last year she had fourteen and a sleigh. But at that dis-tant period of which I speak Mile. Elluini used to drive herself, crying in the true Anglo-Saxon style Yep, yep! to people who did not get out of the One day, a milestone not having heard the warning cry, the vehicle was upset. "Are you bruised?" asked In following up the secondary career here referred to Mile. Elluini visited Rio Janeiro, whence she re-turned with nuggets of gold and Golcondas of diamonds. At first nights Mile, Elluini's diamonds used sometimes to alarm the firemen; the wear-er seemed all blaze. Mile, Elluint's fortune went on increasing steadily. She had a mansion in Paris, Boulevard Pereire a villa at Nice, a shooting box at Chopet, and a country house at Bures, where she spent much money in pious works, and where, two years ago, sented between the mayor and the cure, she distributed, with appropriate words of encourage-ment, prizes for grammar or for views to the young peasants of both sexes It so happens this year that Nolan county can boast of a less percentage in loss of sheep than any county in this part of the state.—A number of ranches in Mitchell and a few in Taylor. Runnels, Coleman and Concho countles, will not make up the loss of the winter in the spring crop of lambs, although some flockmen in each of these counties have lost so few that they will increase their flocks largely -those of the ranchmen who are old experienced sheepmen.—W. C. Campbell, a sheepman of Concho county, arrived in Abilene on Wednesday's stage, on his way to St. Louis, Chicago, and other points, on business. He reports losses in several herds in Concho county. Some have lost young lambs, by being dropped too early.—Abitene Reporter.

A Little Boy's Prayer.

[Middletown (Vt.) Mercury.] A lady restding in this village, the mother of a bright little boy, was talk-ing to blue the other night, just as she was putting him to bed, about the efficacy of praper, and told him that if he would ask God for anything that he particularly desired she had no doubt his request would be granted. The little fellow knelt at his mother's The little fellow knell at his mother's knee and prayed to God to send kind fifty little sisters and one bundred little brothers. The prayer was never finished, for the mother, aghast at the prospect of having her house turned into an orphan asylum, lifted the Loy to his feet and tucked him into led without a moment's immeers ay dewithout a moment's unnecessary de-
